HEALTHY TIPS

Seasonal allergies are at their peak in April, May, and September. During these months, try limiting your time outdoors.

The symptoms you might experience will vary based on the severity of your allergies and the time of year, includes: stuffy or runny nose, itchy, red, and watery eyes, congestion, headaches, sneezing, brain fog, post-nasal drip, and aggravated asthma symptoms.

Over-the-counter medications provide short-term relief from your allergy symptoms. If antihistamines, nasal sprays, and eye drops do not provide enough relief from your seasonal allergies, you can talk to your doctor or look into allergy treatments that will provide long-term relief instead of just masking your symptoms.
